

Thriving through Winter Break

As the holiday season starts and the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic continue to be felt, often we can experience moments of loneliness, stress, sadness and/or a general sense of feeling overwhelmed.

Below are 5 tips to help your child navigate the holiday break...

1. Help your child understand the importance of giving back to the community

Often by brightening someone else's day, your day is also naturally brightened! Simple acts of kindness such as making a card for a friend, helping a neighbor with yard work, pitching in with family chores, or even just offering a compliment or a smile to the people you encounter can brighten both the world around you and the one within you!

2. Make laughter a priority

There's a reason you've often heard, 'Laughter is the best medicine.' Individuals who laugh often tend to be more cheerful, have higher self-esteem and are more likely to develop close social relationships (the kind of positive relationships which can help us navigate stress). Humor can also help us defuse stressful experiences by putting life into perspective.

3. Get moving

Exercise is an awesome stress buster. Whether walking a neighbor's dog, turn up the tunes and dance, throw a football, or join a virtual exercise class, make it a goal to get MOVING with your child at least 20-30 minutes each day.

4. Encourage sleep routines

Sleep allows our bodies to repair, refresh and prepare for the coming day. Help your child keep a sleep routine by setting a bedtime and wake time around the same time every day. Teens need 8-10 hours and school-aged children should get 10-11 hours of sleep each night.

5. Help create resiliency

Visit Virtual MindPeace Rooms™ Virtual versions of the MindPeace Rooms™ were launched to help children and young adults decompress and practice social-emotional and resiliency skills in a NEW digital space. Rooms include videos, activities, and even apps. Send stress packing! Open the door to peace of mind today.

Concerned about your child or someone in your family?

You are NOT alone. Whether they're feeling sad, lonely, overwhelmed and/or stressed, reach out for help.

Crisis Support

Call or text 988 the National Crisis Line: Available 24/7.

No hablas inglés? Encuentra ayuda en el sitio web de Suicide Prevention Lifeline o llamada 988.

NOTE: Call 911 or go to the emergency department if you're experiencing a medical emergency, a life-threatening mental health crisis, or are directed to go there by a medical provider.

For a non-life threatening mental health crisis for children or teens, contact the CCHMC's PIRC department 513-636-4124 where they will help advise you on the most effective level of intervention to fit your needs.

For ongoing therapy needs for children, teens or young adults, visit www.mindpeacecincinnati.com to find a school-based or community provider. Additional crisis resources are also available here.